WRIGLEY'S SPEARMINT NOW EVEN BETTER

Child Rescued and Kidnaper Is Shot

Couple Seized, Husband Wounded, Taking A-way ElDorado Girl

RISON, Ark.—Jesse Gibson, aged about 20, who with Mrs. Gibson is alleged to have kidnaped Ruthie May Smith, the 11-year-old daughter of Mrs. A. D. Harris of El Dorado a week ago, was captured after being shot and seriously wounded by officers near Warren Sunday night.

Mrs. Gibson was arrested and the child was rescued by the officers. The woman was placed in jail at Rison, while the girl was taken to the home of Sheriff Morrison. The girl told the sheriff she had not been mistreated.

Gibson who was rowing down the river in a small boat, was fired upon by the posse when he refused to surrender, although he did not put up a fight. About 15 shots were fired at him. One bullet pierced a lung, physicians said, and he was taken to Dr. Crow's hospital at Warren.

The Gibsons with the little girl, left El Dorado immediately after the child's kidnaping. The child's mother told officers today that she suspected the Gibsons.

Sheriff Morrison received word this morning that the Gibsons had deserted their automobile and seized a boat at White Oak bluff, near here, and started rowing down the river. With several deputies and officers from Bradley county, he started a search of the river.

Japanese Fear of America

By BRUCE CATTON
NEA Editorial Writer

ONE of the oldest of all axioms is that there are two sides to every question.

Somehow, too, it is the first thing that gets forgotten when relations between two great powers become strained. Each side can see only its own interpretation of things. Misunderstanding feeds upon its own fruits, grows as it feeds—and presently leads the two nations to a position where war seems more possible.

For this reason every American ought to ponder over the interview given in New York recently by Yosuke Matsuoka, the Japanese statesman.

Mr. Matsuoka remarked bluntly that his people are quite as disturbed by the "American menace" as we ourselves are by the "yellow peril."

He pointed out that while Japan has no fortifications or naval bases in American waters, we have some in far eastern waters, almost under Japan's doorsill. He pointed out that for years prominent Americans have written books and made speeches calling on the nation to get ready for war with Japan. And he added:

We have always known that we had no capacity to wage war successfully against the richest and the most secure nation in the world. We therefore—we as a whole—have been given to believe that your arguments about your 'necessities for defense' against a Japanese danger had design behind them.

"At times, and not far distant times, you spoke in terms, and displayed naval force in the Pacific, that caused our people no little anxiety. It will take more than a statement that you are concerned mainly with maintaining anti-war machinery to allay our popular anxiety."

All of this is both surprising and enlightening.

We have always looked on ourselves as a peace-loving nation faced, in the Pacific, by a designing, hard-boiled and militaristic power—Japan—from whom almost anything might be expected. And now it develops that the Japanese feel that the exact reverse of all of this is true. We fear what they may do, they fear what we may do—and misunderstanding and suspicion increase year by year.

There are two sides to every question. It is a good thing that we are able, at this stage of the game, to get a look at Japan's side.

Stories of Atrocities

THESE stories of anti-Jewish atrocities on the part of the Hitler government in Germany are dreadful—if they are true; but it might be the part of wisdom for us to reserve decision on them for a little while until we get a better idea which tales are based on substantiated facts and which ones are pure rumor.

A little more than 15 years ago we had another crop of atrocity stories from Germany. We went for them hook, line and sinker at that time—and have been ashamed of our credulity ever since. We don't want to make the same mistake twice.

That the American people will sharply condemn any government which persecutes helpless minorities goes without saying. But we might do well to defer the condemnation until all the returns are in.

Justifiable Optimism

THAT the new feeling of optimism prevalent in this country is shared by impartial observers overseas is made evident by a speech recently delivered in the House of Commons by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer for the British government.

"Looking over the world," says Mr. Chamberlain, "one can see indications that the industrial situation is likely to improve within the next few months.

"A few weeks ago anyone looking at the situation in the United States could have done so only with a feeling of gravest anxiety. Today, thanks to the initiative, courage and wisdom of the president, a change has taken place which is almost miraculous."

Our optimism seems to be justified. We aren't out of the woods, of course—not by a long shot. But we are, at least, on our way.

So They Say!

The gentlemen of the Senate and the House realized, as all sensible people do, that endeavors to meet deficits by borrowing are like giving drink to cure dropsy. — Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., retiring governor-general of the Philippines.

One I Love

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JANET HILL, brooke for engagement to ROLF CARLYLE when she learns he has been paying attentions to BETTY BRANDELL, wealthy society girl. Janet, 25, is secretary to BRUCE HAMILTON, advertising manager of Every Home Magazine. She still loves him.

JEFF GRANT, young engineer, saves her purse from a holdup man and she and Jeff become friends. When she learns Rolf has signed with Betty she tells Jeff about her broken engagement and says she can never care for anyone else.

Hamilton reads the magazine and secures a job for Janet on the editorial staff. Janet's sister, MRS. CURTIS, it is several days before Janet knows she is in town, but it was the KING smile that conceals a thrust-to-come.

"Not at all!" Rolf told her coolly. "Kate, aren't you? I thought you'd be here when I came."

"Yes, I'm late. And how kind it's been of Miss Hill to entertain you. You didn't by any chance come early did you?"

"Betty, don't talk nonsense!"

She came into the room then, walking slowly. She came until she stood half-way between them. Looking directly at Rolf she said, "I will talk whatever and wherever I like and I don't think you'll try to stop me. Oh, no, I wouldn't try to do that! You might be sorry." Then she turned toward Janet. "Will you go tell my mother that we're here?"

Janet had been listening silently. Her face was white, almost as white as the dress she wore. "Mrs. Curtis isn't here," she said. "She went driving with Mr. and Mrs. Thornton."

"Oh, she's not here?" It was Betty speaking. "Well, in that case—If you can spare my husband—we'll be going."

"Betty, for Lord sake, what are you trying to do? Haven't I a right to speak to Janet—?"

"Janet? So that's what you call her. Really I didn't know you were such friends. This is interesting!"

"Why shouldn't I call her Janet? That's her name, isn't it? You call her that yourself." Mrs. Curtis calls her that."

Betty smiled sweetly. Too sweetly. She sat down and drew a cigaret from a case. "Go on, darling," she said, "I'm breathless to hear all about it."

Rolf shrugged his shoulders, turned away in disgust. "All right," he said. "Make anything you like of it. I don't know what started all this but if you're determined to have a row I suppose there'll be one."

It was Janet who interrupted. She said, "Mrs. Carlyle, you surely don't think—!"

"Never mind what I think." Betty retorted. She snapped a lighter that did not work and rose in annoyance. "Are there any matches in this house?"

There were matches in a container nearby and Rolf lighted one for her, held it while the cigaret ignited.

QUIETLY Betty's mood seemed to change. She said, "Oh, come along, Rolf. We were due at the Jamiesons' half an hour ago." She put a hand on his arm as though to indicate that a truce had been established.

Turning to Janet she said, "Tell my mother we were here, will you? I'll call her sometime tomorrow."

A moment more and they were gone. Janet walked to the window and looked out. Completely dark outside except for lights in the windows of the house next door. She turned again toward the room. What an attractive room and what a hideous scene to have taken place there!

As though to get away from it Janet fled up the stairs to her bedroom. She closed the door behind her and sank into the big chair. What was to happen now? Was Betty angry? Did she really suspect Janet and Rolf were interested in each other?

They were all questions without an answer. What would Betty say to her mother tomorrow? A distorted story, of course, if she told any.

"I won't worry," Janet told herself firmly. "There's nothing to worry about because nothing happened!"

She arose then and faced herself in the mirror. It was true. Nothing had happened, but how perilously nervous was the magic! It was a good thing Betty had come, even though she had misunderstood the situation. Five minutes more alone with Rolf and Janet knew she could not have trusted herself. She did not quite trust herself now.

She moved about the room nervously, picked up a magazine and put it down. There was nothing in which she could settle down. Finally she undressed and hung away the white gown. She filled the tub with water, bathed and, though it was still early, tugged on bed tight and slipped into bed.

If Betty ever mentioned the scene in the library to her mother Mrs. Curtis did not speak of it. Preparations for the trip to Silver Bay went on next morning just as they had before. The only difference was that now Janet was eager to get away. She had thought little about the trip; now she looked forward to it. Her confidence had been shaken and the summer resort seemed a refuge.

WEDNESDAY morning they were to depart. Tuesday was a day of feverish activity with packing to be completed, last minute errands, interruptions by the telephone and by the doorbell, friends calling to see Mrs. Curtis, and Mrs. Curtis changing her mind about this and that.

Janet was never quite able to understand why so many details that would have been arranged simply anywhere else became immensely complicated in this household. Try as she would, she could not seem to plan otherwise. Mrs. Curtis would refuse to make up her mind until the last minute or she would make it up early and then change it.

It was with keen relief that Janet saw locks fastened and keys turned in the baggage Wednesday morning. It was with keen relief, too, that she followed Mrs. Curtis from the house to the waiting limousine. Frederick would drive them to the station, bring the car back and store it and then set off on his own vacation.

"You're sure, Janet, that you haven't forgotten anything?" Mrs. Curtis asked anxiously as the motor car drew away. "You're sure you have the tickets?"

"I have them," Janet assured her. And she had. They were safely tucked away in the purse under her arm.

"Well, I hope so." Mrs. Curtis had the worried air of the habitually inefficient.

They arrived at the station and Janet checked over the baggage. All there. She turned to see a bright red jacket making toward them. It was Betty, looking unusually gay and vivacious.

"Thought I'd surprise you, Mother, by dropping around to say good-by! How much time have you? Oh, that's the car. Well —come on!"

Betty seemed in the best of spirits. Janet noted with relief that Rolf was to meet her for lunch. Yes, coming to the station. Betty chattered on as the trainman's warning "All aboard!" A quick kiss then and she was gone.

Mrs. Curtis smiled. "Sweet of her to come, wasn't it?"

Janet said. "Yes, it was." Through the window she saw the red jacket hurrying toward a young man. But it was not Rolf. The young man was in a dark ulster and he was standing beside a slate-colored roadster.

AIRMAN TELLS HOW

violent thunderstorms extending over an area from Philadelphia to perhaps 20 miles at sea to the north off the Jersey coast.

According to Lieutenant Commander Wiley's message, the ship cruised in various directions for possibly four hours at an altitude of about 1,600 feet, trying to find a way out of the circle of storms which finally surrounded it at midnight.

Although this accident occurred at night, it is very similar to the circumstances surrounding the destruction of the Shenandoah airliner, Sept. 3.

Destroyed by Sea

The ship being commanded by storms and lightning, became unmanageable, and lost altitude rapidly. Despite the dropping of the water ballast to prevent this rapid descent, the descending air currents were too strong to be overcome and the ship was driven, stern foremost, towards the surface of the ocean. It apparently hit with such force as to demolish the structure.

Commander Wiley and the men who were rescued were apparently unhurt at the time and managed to grasp some floating objects as the ship crashed. The rest of the passengers and crew were probably pitched into the ocean and due to the darkness and storm were drowned before the rescuing boats coul darrive.

You can discount any lightning fallacy. There has been no proof in the history of lighter-than-air ships that one has been destroyed by lightning.

Black-Draught Eased Gas Pains, Headache

"I was a sufferer from gas in my stomach, a pain and sharp headache," writes Mr. W. R. Williams, of Owens Cross Roads, Ala. "I began to take a pinch of Thedford's Black-Draught after each meal and found it gave me benefit into relief. I keep this medicine in my home all the time and take it when I need it. I have used Black-Draught in my family for over forty years. I enjoy good health and recommend it highly."

Storks Will Not Go to Texarkana

Thursday Contest Cancelled—Black & White Grocers Here Sunday

The Hope Storks will not play the Goodyear Tremens a return game at Texarkana Thursday afternoon as at first reported, Lloyd Coop, manager of the Storks, announced Wednesday.

Tentative plans have been made for a return game at Texarkana sometime during the season, but no definite arrangements have been reached, Coop said.

The game was cancelled because the Goodyear Tremens were unable to obtain State Line park, which had been reserved for a practice game.

The Storks already have defeated two Texarkana city league teams this season. The Southwestern Transporters fell victims in the season's opener here, 4 to 1; and the Tiremen lost to the Storks, 9 to 3, in a game played here last Sunday.

The only game to be played by the Storks this week will be the Black & White grocery team of Little Rock, which comes here Sunday afternoon.

While Manager Coop has not announced who will do duty on the mound Sunday, it is expected that Ralph Pate will get the assignment.

The Little Rock nine was one of the best teams seen in action here last summer. Weather permitting, attendance Sunday afternoon is expected to be the largest this season.

What's the Value of a TRADE-MARK?

TODAY the Chesterfield trade-mark is very valuable. Back of it is the good will of thousands—perhaps hundreds of thousands—of smokers.

Chesterfield cigarettes were first manufactured more than twenty-five years ago. At the start, they were sold at a loss, but the quantity sold increased steadily from year to year, until now Chesterfields are sold in great volume at a very small percentage of profit.

The Chesterfield trade-mark, as indicated above, is registered in the United States Patent Office. This means that the United States Government says that only Chesterfield may use this trade-mark for cigarettes.

This is not only for our protection, but for yours as well, because what the Chesterfield trade-mark really means is that you and all Chesterfield smokers will get Chesterfields manufactured under the same formula, by the same people, and in all respects absolutely the same, in every package you buy, year in and year out.

Wherever you buy them, in this or in any other country, you can depend upon the Chesterfield trade-mark.

Japanese Fear of America

By BRUCE CATTON
NEA Editorial Writer

ONE of the oldest of all axioms is that there are two sides to every question.

Somehow, too, it is the first thing that gets forgotten when relations between two great powers become strained. Each side can see only its own interpretation of things. Misunderstanding feeds upon its own fruits, grows as it feeds—and presently leads the two nations to a position where war seems more possible.

For this reason every American ought to ponder over the interview given in New York recently by Yosuke Matsuoka, the Japanese statesman.

Mr. Matsuoka remarked bluntly that his people are quite as disturbed by the "American menace" as we ourselves are by the "yellow peril."

He pointed out that while Japan has no fortifications or naval bases in American waters, we have some in far eastern waters, almost under Japan's doorsill. He pointed out that for years prominent Americans have written books and made speeches calling on the nation to get ready for war with Japan. And he added:

We have always known that we had no capacity to wage war successfully against the richest and the most secure nation in the world. We therefore—we as a whole—have been given to believe that your arguments about your 'necessities for defense' against a Japanese danger had design behind them.

"At times, and not far distant times, you spoke in terms, and displayed naval force in the Pacific, that caused our people no little anxiety. It will take more than a statement that you are concerned mainly with maintaining anti-war machinery to allay our popular anxiety."

All of this is both surprising and enlightening.

We have always looked on ourselves as a peace-loving nation faced, in the Pacific, by a designing, hard-boiled and militaristic power—Japan—from whom almost anything might be expected. And now it develops that the Japanese feel that the exact reverse of all of this is true. We fear what they may do, they fear what we may do—and misunderstanding and suspicion increase year by year.

There are two sides to every question. It is a good thing that we are able, at this stage of the game, to get a look at Japan's side.

Stories of Atrocities

THESE stories of anti-Jewish atrocities on the part of the Hitler government in Germany are dreadful—if they are true; but it might be the part of wisdom for us to reserve decision on them for a little while until we get a better idea which tales are based on substantiated facts and which ones are pure rumor.

A little more than 15 years ago we had another crop of atrocity stories from Germany. We went for them hook, line and sinker at that time—and have been ashamed of our credulity ever since. We don't want to make the same mistake twice.

That the American people will sharply condemn any government which persecutes helpless minorities goes without saying. But we might do well to defer the condemnation until all the returns are in.

Justifiable Optimism

THAT the new feeling of optimism prevalent in this country is shared by impartial observers overseas is made evident by a speech recently delivered in the House of Commons by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer for the British government.

"Looking over the world," says Mr. Chamberlain, "one can see indications that the industrial situation is likely to improve within the next few months.

"A few weeks ago anyone looking at the situation in the United States could have done so only with a feeling of gravest anxiety. Today, thanks to the initiative, courage and wisdom of the president, a change has taken place which is almost miraculous."

Our optimism seems to be justified. We aren't out of the woods, of course—not by a long shot. But we are, at least, on our way.

So They Say!

The gentlemen of the Senate and the House realized, as all sensible people do, that endeavors to meet deficits by borrowing are like giving drink to cure dropsy. — Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., retiring governor-general of the Philippines.

The Machinery of Government—1933 Model

One I Love

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

© 1933 NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JANET HILL, brooke for engagement to ROLF CARLYLE when she learns he has been paying attentions to BETTY BRANDELL, wealthy society girl. Janet, 25, is secretary to BRUCE HAMILTON, advertising manager of Every Home Magazine. She still loves him.

JEFF GRANT, young engineer, saves her purse from a holdup man and she and Jeff become friends. When she learns Rolf has signed with Betty she tells Jeff about her broken engagement and says she can never care for anyone else.

Hamilton reads the magazine and secures a job for Janet on the editorial staff. Janet's sister, MRS. CURTIS, it is several days before Janet knows she is in town, but it was the KING smile that conceals a thrust-to-come.

"Not at all!" Rolf told her coolly. "Kate, aren't you? I thought you'd be here when I came."

"Yes, I'm late. And how kind it's been of Miss Hill to entertain you. You didn't by any chance come early did you?"

"Betty, don't talk nonsense!"

She came into the room then, walking slowly. She came until she stood half-way between them. Looking directly at Rolf she said, "I will talk whatever and wherever I like and I don't think you'll try to stop me. Oh, no, I wouldn't try to do that! You might be sorry." Then she turned toward Janet. "Will you go tell my mother that we're here?"

Janet had been listening silently. Her face was white, almost as white as the dress she wore. "Mrs. Curtis isn't here," she said. "She went driving with Mr. and Mrs. Thornton."

"Oh, she's not here?" It was Betty speaking. "Well, in that case—If you can spare my husband—we'll be going."

"Betty, for Lord sake, what are you trying to do? Haven't I a right to speak to Janet—?"

"Janet? So that's what you call her. Really I didn't know you were such friends. This is interesting!"

"Why shouldn't I call her Janet? That's her name, isn't it? You call her that yourself." Mrs. Curtis calls her that."

Betty smiled sweetly. Too sweetly. She sat down and drew a cigaret from a case. "Go on, darling," she said, "I'm breathless to hear all about it."

Rolf shrugged his shoulders, turned away in disgust. "All right," he said. "Make anything you like of it. I don't know what started all this but if you're determined to have a row I suppose there'll be one."

It was Janet who interrupted. She said, "Mrs. Carlyle, you surely don't think—!"

"Never mind what I think." Betty retorted. She snapped a lighter that did not work and rose in annoyance. "Are there any matches in this house?"

There were matches in a container nearby and Rolf lighted one for her, held it while the cigaret ignited.

QUIETLY Betty's mood seemed to change. She said, "Oh, come along, Rolf. We were due at the Jamiesons' half an hour ago." She put a hand on his arm as though to indicate that a truce had been established.

Turning to Janet she said, "Tell my mother we were here, will you? I'll call her sometime tomorrow."

A moment more and they were gone. Janet walked to the window and looked out. Completely dark outside except for lights in the windows of the house next door. She turned again toward the room. What an attractive room and what a hideous scene to have taken place there!

As though to get away from it Janet fled up the stairs to her bedroom. She closed the door behind her and sank into the big chair. What was to happen now? Was Betty angry? Did she really suspect Janet and Rolf were interested in each other?

They were all questions without an answer. What would Betty say to her mother tomorrow? A distorted story, of course, if she told any.

"I won't worry," Janet told herself firmly. "There's nothing to worry about because nothing happened!"

She arose then and faced herself in the mirror. It was true. Nothing had happened, but how perilously nervous was the magic! It was a good thing Betty had come, even though she had misunderstood the situation. Five minutes more alone with Rolf and Janet knew she could not have trusted herself. She did not quite trust herself now.

She moved about the room nervously, picked up a magazine and put it down. There was nothing in which she could settle down. Finally she undressed and hung away the white gown. She filled the tub with water, bathed and, though it was still early, tugged on bed tight and slipped into bed.

If Betty ever mentioned the scene in the library to her mother Mrs. Curtis did not speak of it. Preparations for the trip to Silver Bay went on next morning just as they had before. The only difference was that now Janet was eager to get away. She had thought little about the trip; now she looked forward to it. Her confidence had been shaken and the summer resort seemed a refuge.

WEDNESDAY morning they were to depart. Tuesday was a day of feverish activity with packing to be completed, last minute errands, interruptions by the telephone and by the doorbell, friends calling to see Mrs. Curtis, and Mrs. Curtis changing her mind about this and that.

Janet was never quite able to understand why so many details that would have been arranged simply anywhere else became immensely complicated in this household. Try as she would, she could not seem to plan otherwise. Mrs. Curtis would refuse to make up her mind until the last minute or she would make it up early and then change it.

It was with keen relief that Janet saw locks fastened and keys turned in the baggage Wednesday morning. It was with keen relief, too, that she followed Mrs. Curtis from the house to the waiting limousine. Frederick would drive them to the station, bring the car back and store it and then set off on his own vacation.

"You're sure, Janet, that you haven't forgotten anything?" Mrs. Curtis asked anxiously as the motor car drew away. "You're sure you have the tickets?"

"I have them," Janet assured her. And she had. They were safely tucked away in the purse under her arm.

"Well, I hope so." Mrs. Curtis had the worried air of the habitually inefficient.

They arrived at the station and Janet checked over the baggage. All there. She turned to see a bright red jacket making toward them. It was Betty, looking unusually gay and vivacious.

"Thought I'd surprise you, Mother, by dropping around to say good-by! How much time have you? Oh, that's the car. Well —come on!"

Betty seemed in the best of spirits. Janet noted with relief that Rolf was to meet her for lunch. Yes, coming to the station. Betty chattered on as the trainman's warning "All aboard!" A quick kiss then and she was gone.

Mrs. Curtis smiled. "Sweet of her to come, wasn't it?"

Janet said. "Yes, it was." Through the window she saw the red jacket hurrying toward a young man. But it was not Rolf. The young man was in a dark ulster and he was standing beside a slate-colored roadster.

violent thunderstorms extending over an area from Philadelphia to perhaps 20 miles at sea to the north off the Jersey coast.

According to Lieutenant Commander Wiley's message, the ship cruised in various directions for possibly four hours at an altitude of about 1,600 feet, trying to find a way out of the circle of storms which finally surrounded it at midnight.

Although this accident occurred at night, it is very similar to the circumstances surrounding the destruction of the Shenandoah airliner, Sept. 3.

Destroyed by Sea

The ship being commanded by storms and lightning, became unmanageable, and lost altitude rapidly. Despite the dropping of the water ballast to prevent this rapid descent, the descending air currents were too strong to be overcome and the ship was driven, stern foremost, towards the surface of the ocean. It apparently hit with such force as to demolish the structure.

Commander Wiley and the men who were rescued were apparently unhurt at the time and managed to grasp some floating objects as the ship crashed. The rest of the passengers and crew were probably pitched into the ocean and due to the darkness and storm were drowned before the rescuing boats coul darrive.

You can discount any lightning fallacy. There has been no proof in the history of lighter-than-air ships that one has been destroyed by lightning.

Thursday Contest Cancelled—Black & White Grocers Here Sunday

The Hope Storks will not play the Goodyear Tremens a return game at Texarkana Thursday afternoon as at first reported, Lloyd Coop, manager of the Storks, announced Wednesday.

Tentative plans have been made for a return game at Texarkana sometime during the season, but no definite arrangements have been reached, Coop said.

The game was cancelled because the Goodyear Tremens were unable to obtain State Line park, which had been reserved for a practice game.

The Storks already have defeated two Texarkana city league teams this season. The Southwestern Transporters fell victims in the season's opener here, 4 to 1; and the Tiremen lost to the Storks, 9 to 3, in a game played here last Sunday.

The only game to be played by the Storks this week will be the Black & White grocery team of Little Rock, which comes here Sunday afternoon.

While Manager Coop has not announced who will do duty on the mound Sunday, it is expected that Ralph Pate will get the assignment.

The Little Rock nine was one of the best teams seen in action here last summer. Weather permitting, attendance Sunday afternoon is expected to be the largest this season.

What's the Value of a TRADE-MARK?

TODAY the Chesterfield trade-mark is very valuable. Back of it is the good will of thousands—perhaps hundreds of thousands—of smokers.

Chesterfield cigarettes were first manufactured more than twenty-five years ago. At the start, they were sold at a loss, but the quantity sold increased steadily from year to year, until now Chesterfields are sold in great volume at a very small percentage of profit.

The Chesterfield trade-mark, as indicated above, is registered in the United States Patent Office. This means that the United States Government says that only Chesterfield may use this trade-mark for cigarettes.

This is not only for our protection, but for yours as well, because what the Chesterfield trade-mark really means is that you and all Chesterfield smokers will get Chesterfields manufactured under the same formula, by the same people, and in all respects absolutely the same, in every package you buy, year in and year out.

Wherever you buy them, in this or in any other country, you can depend upon the Chesterfield trade-mark.

Mass Meeting Saturday at Prescott Studies $90,000 Debt

PRESCOTT.—A mass meeting which filled the court room of the local courthouse Saturday passed resolutions protesting the hiring of J. W. Teeter as county school examiner or in any other official capacity with the county schools. At this same meeting a resolution was passed requesting the state comptroller to investigate certain 1932 school loans, the purchase of school trucks and requesting an audit of the county book depository.

County Tax Assessor Luther Lavender was elected chairman of the meeting. Mr. Lavender spoke at length on the condition of the school and upon the appointment of such an officer. He stated that the school districts were more than $90,000 in debt in warrants at present and attributed much of this to mismanagement.

A resolution requesting a committee to draft a protest resolution was passed and a committee consisting of W. E. Armstrong, A. F. Jones and E. M. Wooley was appointed. This committee withdrew to draft resolutions and J. O. A. Bush took the floor in explanation of several of the details involved in the present school setup.

Here and There

Editorial By Alex. H. Washburn

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has called a conference on world trade in Washington this spring, and you read on this page yesterday that Great Britain and France have agreed to participate.

Some folks say the United States ought to leave Europe strictly alone. Mr. William Randolph Hearst, who owns 26 of the largest American newspapers, says we ought to leave Europe alone—that Europe has nothing to do with the American panic.

Other folks say we can't leave Europe alone—that Europe has a great deal to say about whether the United States is ever going to be prosperous again. One of these is Peter Molyneaux, editor of the Texas Weekly, and a member of the Sloan Committee on War Debts.

Mr. Hearst beats the old political war drum, writing in his Chicago Herald & Examiner as follows:

"It seems inconceivably short-sighted for the Democratic administration to follow in the international footsteps of the late unlamented Hoover and run the risk of alienating the progressives from the Democratic party . . . yet that seems to be what the Democratic administration is about to do. It is interesting itself unduly and unnecessarily in foreign affairs."

x x x

Unnecessarily?

Mr. Molyneaux leaves politics aside (Mr. Hearst blows Republican and Democratic every other election) and gives us some plain facts.

He considers his own state of Texas (and the same facts apply to Arkansas):

"Texas buys much more from the American people than the American people buy from Texas. But in order to do this, it is necessary for the people of Texas to sell to Europe and Asia a much larger amount per person that the people of any other state in the Union . . . The detailed figures for 1932 are not yet available, but I do not think that Texas exports for that year will amount to more than $50 per capita, as compared with $146 in 1929 . . . When we stop buying automobiles, as we did in 1930, it means unemployment in Detroit, and the unemployed in Detroit stop buying things, too."

Mr. Hearst has words—but Mr. Molyneaux facts.

Now but a hopelessly prejudiced man believes America can enforce her "white elephant" claim on Europe when debts, unless she is prepared to face private bankruptcy at home and the private citizens of Europe are paying their governments the money—taxation to meet those war debts.

Beer in 19 states and the District of Columbia Friday.

I read where repeal of the Eighteenth amendment carried every one of Wisconsin's 71 counties.

Manager Roussie of the Saenger theater was born in Milwaukee.

The Lord be praised—I obtained 14 gallons of gasoline and a quart of oil. He then asked the filling station operator for a package of cigarettes. As Cosby turned to get the cigarettes, Dewey stepped on the accelerator and sped away.

Cosby fired four shots at the fleeing car. Then called Officer Turner.

An automobile described as the same sedan, passed the Fulton toll bridge Tuesday afternoon at a high rate of speed, traveling east toward Hope.

The car was thought by officers to have been stolen in Louisiana. An effort is being made to locate the owner.

19 States to Get New Brew Friday; 'Carnival' Opposed

Six Other States Have Legalized Beer for a Later Date

NOT A DRY COUNTY

Ratification of Repealer Carries All 71 Wisconsin Counties

By the Associated Press

A large part of the country goes off the near-beer standard at 12:01 o'clock Friday morning.

In 19 states and the District of Columbia the sale of beer containing 3.2 per cent alcohol by weight becomes legal at that time.

Brewers in some of those state plan to deliver beer as soon as it becomes legal. Others, ruling out jubilee parties at midnight, say beer will not be delivered before breakfast-time.

Six other states have legalized the sale of beer at a later date, and legislation is pending in a number of other states.

Celebration Opposed

NEW YORK—(AP)—Jacob Ruppert threw the weight of his position as president of the United States Brewers Association Wednesday against a "carnival" welcoming of 3.2 per cent beer in the early hours of April 7.

Nineteen states and the District of Columbia will permit manufacture and sale on Friday.

Colonel Ruppert counseled against an "untoward celebration" and explained he spoke for brewers the million over in deploring that delivery would not be made until 6 a. m.

"It is important to retain that legal beer will flow into steins in many cities soon after the midnight hour, as other brewers have announced is their intention of speedy delivery.

In St. Louis, home of Busch and others said they would go forward with plans for distribution one minute after midnight. Each has received the association order from Ruppert before.

In Philadelphia and Chicago, some brewers said exes would be carted out at 1201 a. m.

New York Regulations

How 400 breweries in New York city and state would follow Ruppert's order was not immediately known.

While the New York legislature remained deadlocked over a plan for beer control, sale of the brew was assured in the absence of prohibitory laws. In New York city Mayor John P. O'Brien tonight set up temporary regulations of beer under jurisdiction of the Board of Health, to be rescinded when the state control laws are adopted. Issuance of permits will be left to police in the boroughs.

For manufacture of beer or light wines, the city will levy a $100 tax for wholesalers a $50 tax; to sell beer on draught $25; to sell beer in bottles to be consumed on premises $15; to sell bottled beer not to be consumed on premises $10.

In Minneapolis, the City Council overrode Mayor W. A. Anderson's veto of a regulatory ordinance which he held in violation of the Eighteenth Amendment and immediately issued 429 licenses.

The price of bottled beer, Colonel Ruppert said, would be $1.60 a case to jobbers and $2 to consumers.

Not a Dry County

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—(AP)—Additional returns from the state-wide referendum Tuesday gave emphasis to Wisconsin's disapproval of the Eighteenth amendment.

With returns complete from 2,365 of the state's 2,389 voting precincts, the vote was: For repeal, 536,800; against, 111,871.

All of the 14 selected for delegates to the constitutional convention to be held at Madison April 25, were reported to vote for outright repeal.

Opponents of prohibition hailed the triumph as complete. Not only was every candidate for delegate to the convention elected, but also indications were that dry's did not carry one of the state's 71 counties.

Lone Michigan Dry

HASTINGS, Mich.—Dean Eugene Davenport who resides near Hastings, is the lone dry repeal convention delegate who was victorious in Monday's election.

"I will carry the prohibition flag to Lansing even, though it is destined to be humble dis defeat," he said. "I am

Pair Escape From Gas Station Under Fire, Refusing Pay

Officers Find Car Abandoned With 3 Bullet-Holes in It

2 MEN ARE SOUGHT

Drive Out of Bates Station as 4 Shots Are Fired at Them

Hempstead county officers Thursday were searching for two men, one believed to be wounded, who obtained gasoline ad oil at Bate's filling station on the Fulton highway Wednesday night, and then sped away under a volley of gun fire.

Dewey Cozby, filling station operator, fired four shots at the fleeing car as it was driven west down the paved Fulton road, after the occupants refused to pay for the gas. Night Officer Turner was notified and a search immediately started.

Turner and Cosby came upon the car a few minutes later on a rural road leading from the concrete highway to the old Fulton gravel road. The automobile had been abandoned, and the men evidently had fled to the woods.

3 Bullets Hit Car

The car occupied by two men, was a late model Chrysler sedan, bearing Louisiana license. Three bullets from Cosby's gun had pierced the body of the car, one taking effect in the side of the rear bumper at the end of the car, and the third going through the windshield.

Cosby said he thought the fourth bullet hit the driver in his left shoulder. The two men were described as being about 22 years old. One was a short, dark, complexioned fellow, while the other was a tall, slim blond. Both appeared to be "jelly-beans," Cozby said.

Escape by Ruse

The car drove into the station from the east entrance. The men obtained 14 gallons of gasoline and a quart of oil. He then asked the filling station operator for a package of cigarettes. As Cosby turned to get the cigarettes, Dewey stepped on the accelerator and sped away.

Cosby fired four shots at the fleeing car. Then called Officer Turner.

An automobile described as the same sedan, passed the Fulton toll bridge Tuesday afternoon at a high rate of speed, traveling east toward Hope.

The car was thought by officers to have been stolen in Louisiana. An effort is being made to locate the owner.

Dental Lecturer Talks to Students

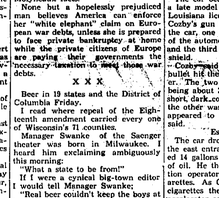
Dr. O. Hammer, Formerly of St. Louis U., Here Thursday

Dr. O. Hammer, nationally known lecturer on dental hygiene and author or professor in the St. Louis University school of dentistry, is a visitor in Hope this week.

He will deliver addresses to Hope school students, giving instructions on the care of teeth, using moving pictures in his illustrations.

Dr. Hammer has lectured in the principal cities of the United States, and especially in the south and southwest. He is making a tour of the schools in Arkansas.

Dr. Hammer is a member of the American and National dental associations, and the Missouri State dental society. He spends most of his time in lecturing to school students.



L. R. Merger Plan Reported Given Up

3 Banks Said to Be Planning on Reopening Independently

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—The Arkansas Democrat says Thursday that the plan to merge Little Rock's three restricted banks has been set aside temporarily, and efforts will be made to open them individually.

If a loan can be obtained from the Reconstruction Finance corporation they will pay depositors 50 per cent immediately.

The banks affected are the Union Trust, the Bankers Trust and the Peoples Trust company.

Hempstead Radish Crop on the Move

2 Carloads Leave for Chicago—Yield Cut by One-Half

A new radish crop in Hempstead county has started moving, local shippers pending two carloads to Chicago market. Much replanting was done.

With the new crop being harvested, radish production in this county is about one-half normal, local shippers' estimated Thursday. The February freeze and financial trouble was given by the shippers as the cause for the shortage.

Farmers are receiving from 40 to 75 cents net per bushel, but as the season progresses it is expected they will take a chance with the local shippers in marketing their crop.

A number of persons have been given employment in harvesting the crop.

Arkansas Camps Ready by April 15

Construction Work Rushed in National Forest at Hot Springs

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Selection of 25,000 men who will form the first contingent of the conservation corps in reforestation work was nearly complete in 17 cities Thursday. The Department of Labor made plans for thousands additional thousands during the remainder of April and May.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—Although all available work projects in the Ouachita National Forest to erect buildings necessary for the three CCC camps the government will open in connection with President Roosevelt's reforestation bill, A. C. Shaw, supervisor of that forest domain, said Wednesday it would be physically impossible to complete all the camps, and that none of them, judging from information received from Washington, would be occupied before April 15.

"We are now working on the mess halls," Mr. Shaw said. "Each building of that kind will be constructed under regular army specifications and will be 30 feet by 54 feet. Then we will erect about seven other buildings, showers, toilets and other facilities, which cannot possibly be completed by Monday. Then will come the equipment which will either be that for road work or strictly forestry labor. Just as soon as we know the kind of tents that will be sent us we will be able to determine the number needed, but at present, I would say that not more than 25 tents will be in the camps when the first contingent arrives."

Three 190-men camps have been authorized for both the Ouachita and Ozark national forests. Those in the former will be located at Aly, near the Montgomery and Yell county line another at Shady, south of Mena and just across the Arkansas-Oklahoma line, in Oklahoma and near Menapaw, in the Ozark National Forest. The three camps will be north of the town of Ozark, at Casa; another on the Illinois bayou at Dover, and the third near Mountain View, Stone county.

By The Associated Press

Editor's Note:—This is a series of articles explaining acts of the 1933 general assembly.

Act No. 144

Act No. 144 or 1933 fixed June 15 as the last date for payment of poll taxes that would qualify the holders to vote.

Poll taxes for this year are for the assessments made last year, prior to April 10.

Any person who has not assessed a poll tax may, up to and including June 15, go before the clerk and make an assessment and pay a penalty of $1—25 cents of which shall go to the clerk for his services, and 75 cents to the county general fund. If the assessment be made after April 10, the collector also must add a penalty of 25 cents for failure to pay the poll tax at the time prescribed for making payment without a penalty which is due April 10.

Women are not required by the constitutio nto pay a poll tax unless they want to vote, and in that event the supreme court has held that they are subject to the laws relating to assessment and collection of poll taxes.

A poll tax receipt issued on or before June 15 entitles the holder to vote in any election between June 15, 1933, and June 15, 1934.

Any person who has become of age since the time for assessing taxes in 1932 (April 10) may, if possessing other qualifications of an elector, vote without a poll tax receipt at any election prior to June 15, 1934.

Rescue Blimp Crashes

—Copyright 1933 NEA Service, Inc. Telephoto

UPPER—When the Navy blimp J-2 dropped into the ocean off Beach Haven, N. J., five of its crew of seven were rescued, the photo showing the commander, Lieutenant W. Conklin being placed in an ambulance. The second in command, Lieutenant-Commander David E. Cummins, native of Hope, Ark., and one of the crew were killed. Lieut.-Comdr. Cummins was picked up by a Coast Guard cutter and taken to an Atlantic City hospital, but he never regained consciousness.

LOWER—The J-2 is shown, as she collapsed on the water. The J-3 was a semi-dirigible, having a metal "backbone" but no rigid metal frame like the Akron and other true dirigibles. Authorities question the wisdom of sending an easily collapsible small ship like the J-2 out to sea in a storm which the vastly larger and stronger air-liner Akron could not withstand.

Judge Bush Orders Crawford County to Turn Him Over

Sheriff Wilson Leaves for "Walls" to Seize Crawford Co. Prisoner

SHERIFF DEMURRED

Crawford Co. Officer Holds Him for "the Highest Bidder" on Request

While several states have been clamoring for him on bank robbery charges, Charley Chapman, self-styled "depression desperado," will be returned to Hempstead county to face charges involving the holdup of the First National Bank here in which three bandits, led by Chapman, obtained $24,000.

Sheriff John L. Wilson, Chief Deputy Clarence Baker and Constable Will Parnell left Hope early Thursday with a order from Circuit Judge Dexter Bush to secure Chapman to this county for trial in Hempstead circuit court. The three officers and Chapman are expected to return here late Thursday.

Sheriff Joe Mazzy

Since his capture several months ago in a gun fight with officers at Fort Smith, Shapman has been held in the technical custody of Sheriff D. Mazzy, of Crawford county.

Mazzy refused to release Chapman until officers met requirements of the reward." Chapman was wanted in the highest bidder," the Crawford county sheriff was quoted as saying.

When the Hempstead county grand jury met here last week, Chapman was indicted on the charge of robbery. Judge Bush, who presided, ordered the return Chapman to this county.

The desperado is held in the Arkansas penitentiary, recovering from bullet wounds received in the gun battle with Sheriff Mazzy and his deputies in a fight near Fort Smith.

Bond Set at $5,000

Williams was captured in Alexandria, La., a few days after the bank robbery, identified by bank employees as one of the actual holdup men. Chapman was also identified by Dan Hamilton, assistant cashier of the bank, who was held as a hostage during the robbery.

Chapman was captured at Wichita Falls, Texas, after officers had been informed by bank employees in Hope that Chapman was captured and viewed him in a hospital bed.

Chapman is being closely guarded in the Washington jail, or threats have been received to liberate him or to kill him because he "talked" under questioning of Arkansaw and Miller county officers concerning the bank job.

Williams is due to turn a state witness in the robbery.

Williams is wanted in Mississippi as a fugitive from the state prison. He escaped October 5, after being sentenced up for five years on a highway robbery charge under the name of Carol White.

Shirley Crank of Garland City is being held as an accomplice after the fact of bank robbery and for harboring criminals.

Criminal trials will be set in circuit court next Monday morning.

Civil Suit Heard

The only case in Hempstead circuit court at Washington Thursday was that of Bessie and Stuart Wade vs. Ritchie Grocer company. The plaintiffs, husband and wife, were the parents of Mississippi, alege that on October 6, 1930, Mrs. Wade received injuries in an automobile accident near Camden. A truck owned by Ritchie Grocer company figured in the accident.

According to testimony introduced by defendants, the plaintiffs signed an agreement releasing the company from further liability, after the grocer company paid all bills that resulted from the accident.

Counsel for the injured woman contended that Mrs. Wade was in such condition at the time of signing the release that she did not know the terms of the agreement.

The case was transferred to Hempstead county on a change of venue. A number of witnesses testified as doubtful whether the case would be completed Thursday.

Unemployed Army Routed in Illinois

Tear-Bombs Halt March of 1,100 Men Toward Springfield

OTTAWA, Ill.—(AP)—Eleven hundred unemployed relief demonstrators en route to Springfield, Ill., were turned back toward their homes Thursday by a barrage of tear gas.

Most of them were from Chicago.

Eleven demonstrators, including Karl Lockner, of Chicago, chairman of the Unemployment Council, were arrested after a fight in a quagmire on the tourist camping ground where they spent the night.

The unemployed army tried to fight back with clubs and rocks, but none was injured seriously.

Arlington Service for Prescott Hero

Lieut.-Comdr. Cummins, of J-3, Buried at Washington Thursday

PRESCOTT, Ark.—Lieutenant-Commander David E. Cummins, who lost his life in the crash of the semi-dirigible J-3 Tuesday while searching for the survivors of the Akron off the New Jersey coast, was to be buried in Arlington National Cemetery at Washington, D. C. Thursday, according to word reaching his old home town Wednesday.

Lieut.-Commander Cummins was born and reared here, the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Cummins, pioneer Prescott citizens.

He attended school here and was graduated from the Prescott High School in 1914 soon after which he enlisted in the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

He will be remembered by many friends of this city as a member of the first Prescott High School football team and as a baseball player of unusual talent.

Upon his graduation at Annapolis he married Miss Dorothy Hasbrook of Washington, D. C. His family composed of his wife, one son, David E. the 4th, and one daughter, Dorothy Ann are at present residing at Lakehurst, N. J. He is also survived by his mother, two sisters, Mrs. Theodore Elgin and Mrs. J. R. Piery of Prescott and two barthers, Roy Cummins of Prescott and Dr. Brice Cummins of Little Rock.

Akron Inquiry to Be Opened Monday

President Roosevelt Hears Story of 3 Survivors of Crew

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Secretary Swanson of the Navy Department, in a formal order Thursday for the court of inquiry which will investigate the loss of the Akron, instructed it to give its opinion "as to whether any offenses had been committed, or serious blame incurred" in the loss of the ship.

Meanwhile bits of wreckage and spots of oil flung up from the heaving sea were the only possible traces found of the great airship.

The new personnel of the naval board of inquiry will convene at Lakehurst Monday.

The three survivors of the Akron's crew went to the White House Thursday to see President Roosevelt, and at his request related their story of the accident. They expressed confidence that the cause of the crash ever would be known.

The president listened sympathetically, but did not question them.

Foods at Savings

This issue of Hope Star contains many interesting suggestions for your Sunday in its advertising columns, as well as for other meals throughout the week—all at prices that represent savings to you and your wives.

Make up your food list from the special values offered today and tomorrow, and you'll save money. The grocer who advertises his values in the newspaper can sell you foods at a lower price scale, for the advertising brings him large numbers of thrifty shoppers, and he can serve larger numbers of customers with no increase in overhead expenses, such as rent, lights, employes, etc. Newspaper advertising as usually less expensive than other forms of advertising, another reason for depending on the grocery ads in this paper.

Depend on the Hope Star advertising columns for your foods and you'll be proud of your savings.

Reprieve Refused Winnie Ruth Judd

Trunk Murderess Must Die on Arizona Scaffold April 21

PHOENIX, Ariz.—(AP)—The Arizona board of pardons and paroles refused Thursday to grant Winnie Ruth Judd another reprieve in the trunk murder case.

She is under sentence to hang April 21.

One reprieve was granted her, postponing the execution from the original date of April 14.
